

Bloomberg named official industry supporter of Macao Gaming Show

Media giant Bloomberg is set to have an important presence at the upcoming Macao Gaming Show following the announcements that it has been named as Official Industry Supporter for the November event. Margaret Huang, Bloomberg Intelligence's Gaming and Lodging Analyst based out of Hong Kong, has also been confirmed as a key speaker at the Macao Gaming Summit, taking place alongside the show with the theme of Asian Gaming: Looking beyond the horizon.

Ross Zhang, Event Operation Manager for MGS, said: "It is with great honour we are announcing Bloomberg as our official industry supporter and that Margaret Hung will be appearing at the Summit as a key speaker.

"Their presence at MGS 2014 further underlines the weight of exhibitors and sponsors at the event, and gives delegates yet another reason to attend the event.

Covering Macau and Asia regional casinos and global hotel companies for Bloomberg, Margaret Hung has years of industry experience ranging from operations to real estate development consulting out of Asia. She has also worked at Goldman Sachs, New York in their private wealth business, and holds a Master's of Hospitality Management degree from Cornell University. The title of her speech is: "Macau Faces Year-End Challenges Ahead of 2015 Capacity Flood".
