

Infusion: new IGE party unveiled

Clarion Gaming, organisers of the International Gaming Expo, have announced details of a new official party open to attendees of the 2010 Earls Court exhibition. Dubbed 'Infusion', the inaugural event will take place on Tuesday 26th January at the popular Orchid nightclub at Piccadilly Circus.

In contrast with previous years, Infusion will cater for all types of gaming professional – casino, low stake and remote gaming, lottery, betting, bingo and amusements – with tickets distributed onsite during the show build-up and first day, as well as via all exhibitors.

With a total capacity of 1,000, the Orchid Bar & Lounge is situated at the bustling heart of London's West End and provides an oasis of calm exuberance amongst a complex of opulently designed rooms of varying styles, including several exclusive VIP areas for private group hosting. Sommelier selected wines, carefully crafted cocktails and exotic beers feature amongst a wide range of refreshments to satiate the most demanding palates.

Whilst the headline acts at Infusion are being kept under wraps, the evening will incorporate live music, entertaining performance arts, 'shots on roller skates' and DJ's playing a selection of the latest music throughout the night.

Clarion Gaming's Charlotte Skinner stated: "Social networking is an extremely important feature of IGE week, which is why we aim to create an unforgettable experience in one of the world's top entertainment meccas. There are nine premium sponsorship packages available, which enable brands to associate themselves with various aspects of Infusion, as well as a range of opportunities for host companies to make the experience even more exclusive for their VIP guests."
