

GamblingCompliance commission free regulatory report for all ICE visitors

The presence of GamblingCompliance underscores ICE's position at the heart of international gaming according to Jo Mayer, ICE Marketing Director.

London – Visitors to February's ICE Totally Gaming exhibition will have access to a specially commissioned regulatory report produced by GamblingCompliance, the leading provider of essential business intelligence to the global gambling industry. Gambling Compliance will be using its presence at the world's most influential business-to-business gaming event to showcase a suite of new products including gambling blacklist monitoring and an updated suite of eLearning courses including LCCP.

ICE will also see GamblingCompliance offering free trials and demonstrations of PaymentsCompliance, the new subscription service for the global digital payments industry. The service, launched this month, offers clients critical information on regulatory and legislative developments in the global digital payments industry through daily news and analysis, global regulatory directories, legal briefings and country reports. In addition the show presence will also feature free trials and demonstrations of its enhanced web subscription platform. Launched in September, the new platform offers enriched functionality, all compatible with mobile and tablet.

Jo Mayer, Marketing Director responsible for ICE said: „The presence of GamblingCompliance, one of the key suppliers of business information and intelligence to the gaming industry, underscores the exhibition’s position at the heart of international gaming and is another important reason to visit ICE. As the market-leading gaming event of the year ICE provides a holistic view on the industry covering the latest products and services, the latest technology trends, the latest thinking and of course the latest information on compliance and regulations. Gambling Compliance contribute to this significantly and I am delighted that the organisation is also a partner for the WrB (World Regulatory Briefing) conference and will be moderating the panel Exploring different enforcement activities, their successes and limitations.“
