

Macau aims to bring in the Euro

There's an irony in the best of Europe making their way to the other side of the world to see the wonders of Venetian life. But that's how it will be next month when the some of the leading names in European gaming exhibit at the Macao Gaming Show amid the canals, the gondolas and even St Marks Square – all replicated at one of the world's leading exhibition halls in the Venetian Macao.

Macau aims to bring in the Euro

Internationally recognised companies from across the gaming, leisure and technology sectors from the European Union have all elected to take that journey, using MGS as their starting point to reach the all-important Macau and Asian marketplace. The European contingent ranges from media services to 3D cinematic gaming, from igaming to automated roulette wheels.

“We have enjoyed a strong relationship with businesses from the European Union at the Macao Gaming Show,” commented Event Director Marina Wong. “Providing a platform for exhibitors and buyers eyeing the Asian market is an integral part of MGS and we are excited that so many internationally recognised companies choose to use our exhibition to showcase their services and network here.”

Among those European companies showcasing their own unique
